

Research in Singapore ICUs: Opportunities and pain points

Singapore has many state of the art intensive care units which are run by experienced and dedicated teams and which achieve good patient outcomes that the country can be proud of. To take intensive care in Singapore to the next level, the intensive care community can focus on two areas: education and research. This talk will discuss the latter and point out the unique opportunities Singapore has in the research arena, as well as the difficulties we face.